+ Naveen Bagalkot: Literature Review and State-of-Art Study of Works in Designing for Embodied Interaction

- Presentation
- Available in Atrium via Skype

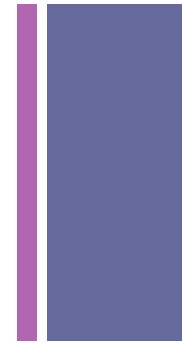

+ Kjell Yngve Petersen: Globally connected performance activities (1-3)

+ Troels Fibæk: Mobile Media, Sociability and Convergence (1-2)

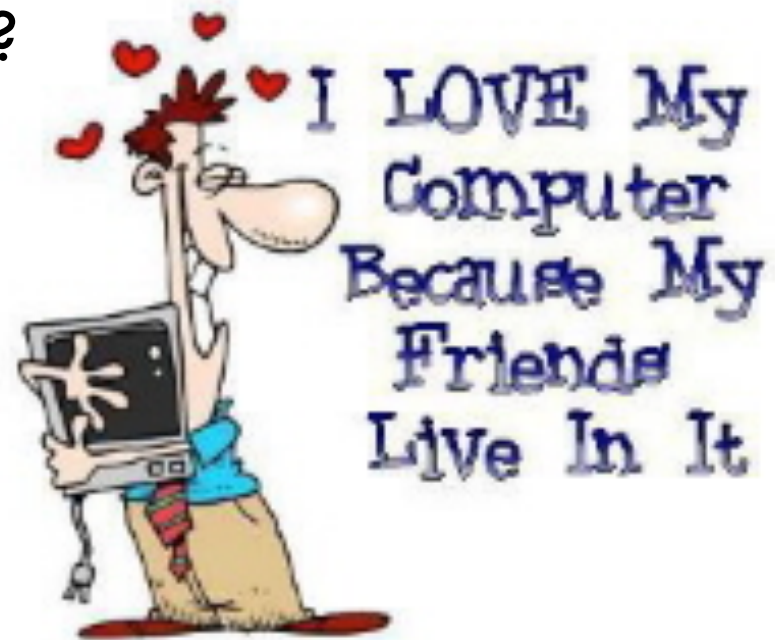

- The main interest of this (PhD) project is how Danish Youth aged 16–19 manage mediated sociability in an environment characterized by increased mobile connectivity and convergent communication media.
- Mobile communication:
 - From 1-to-1 to many-to-many
 - Convergent media and the mobile phone as a “portal”
- Mediated sociability:
 - New mobile social stages
 - New tensions: Availability, participation, and privacy
 - Limited knowledge
- A qualitative approach to explore uses and meanings of technology in everyday life

+ Thomas Pederson: Smoke and mirrors,
rabbits in hats

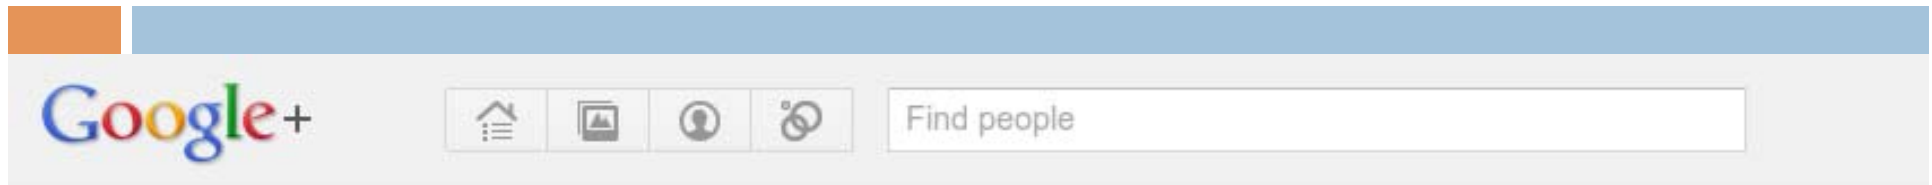

Finding lost friends on Facebook

- Why do people seek out long lost friends or acquaintances?
- What happens when the connection is re-established?
- What do people get out of it?

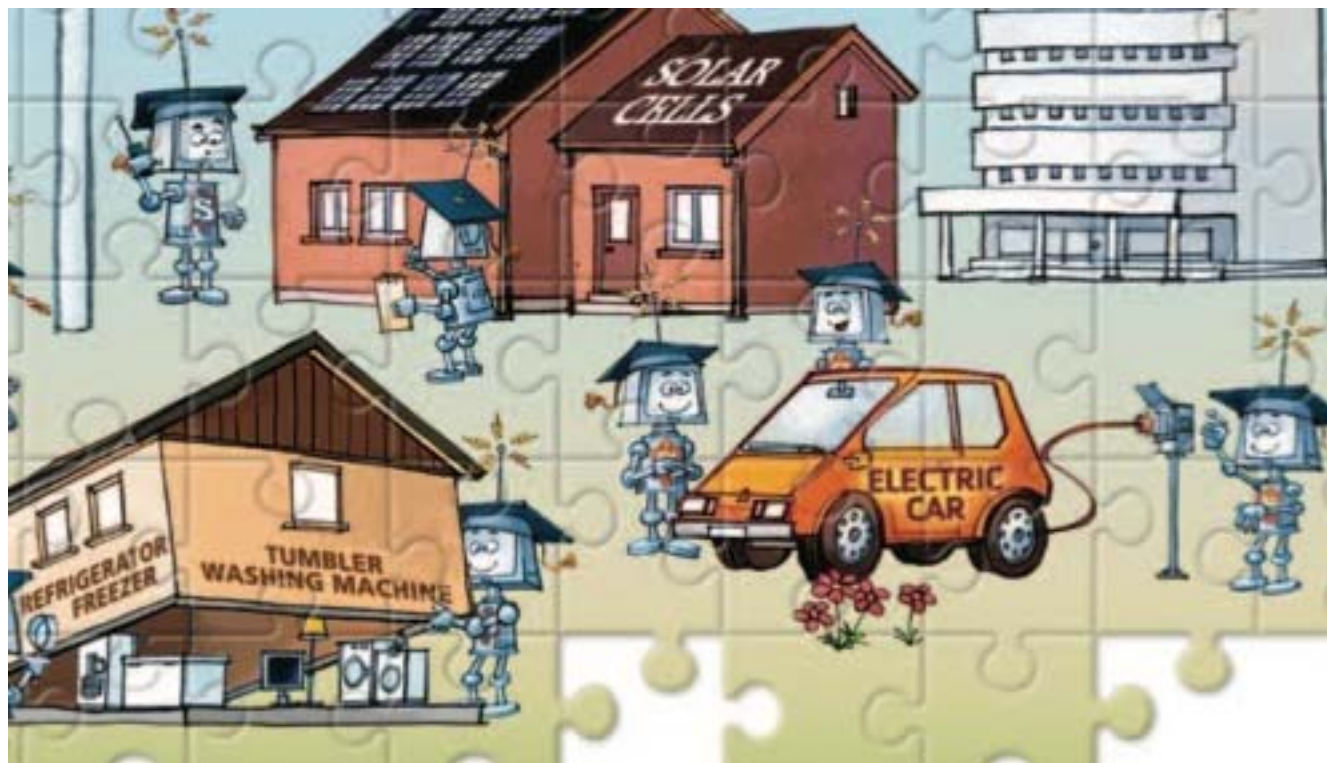

Why would you NOT use technology?

Profile not found.

- No mobile phone, no Google or Facebook profile
 - Who are these people?
 - Why do they not participate?

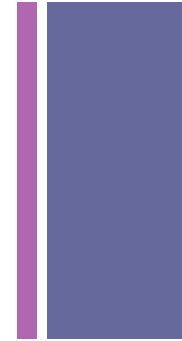

Lea Schick: How is our ecological future imagined through the smart grid?

“Just as the internet revolutionised the way we communicate, the intelligent power grid will change the way we use electricity. In some years, it will seem completely natural to have our appliances constantly online, checking the actual price of electricity and starting the washing machine when the price is low.”

- + Arun Nagargoje: Investigating synergistic relationship between exercising and socializing or
Exploring design space of exercising and socializing, through design exploration of augmented Nordic Walking sticks
